BAKING POWDER

Is the Most Economical

Greater in leavening strength, a spoonful raises more dough, or goes further.

Working uniformly and perfectly, it makes the bread and cake always light and beautiful, and there is never a waste of good flour, sugar, butter and eggs.

While it actually costs less to make a batch of biscuit with the Price Baking Powder than with the so-called cheap powders, there is the additional advantage of better and more healthful food.

NOTE.—Alum powders should not be used, no matter how cheap they are. They induce dyspepsia, liver complaint and kidney trouble.

BAR TAKES ACTION.

Preamble and Resolutions Eulogistic of Henry C. Wallace.

To the Members of the Lexington Bar:

Brethren:—Your committee to whom was referred the duty of reporting to this meeting a preamble and resolutions expressive of the many virtues of our deceased brother, Henry C. Wallace, Sr., and the great esteem in which he was held by the members of our Bar respectfully submit the following:

After a long, continuous and successful practice of his chosen profession, the law, our friend and brother, Hon. Henry C. Wallace, has made his last brief in an earthly court and has gone up to bear the final decision in his own case and to receive from the Judge of all the earth the welcome of "well done."

Mr. Wallace was born in Woodford county, Kentucky, August, 18, 1823; came to Lexington with his father and family about the year 1844, where he continued to reside until the day of his death, which occurred on the 24th day of October, 1901. He taught school while studying law and was licensed and admitted to the Lexington Bar in the year 1849 and from that time up until January, 1897 he was actively engaged in the practice of his profession. He loved the study of law and his inherent love of the right and his ardent desire to see it prevail made him exceedingly fond of the equity side of the law. He was also fond of criminal law and in his early practice had charge of many important criminal cases, and his clients never had any occasion to complain of his failure to do his whole duty, and and do it well. During his long connection with our bar he was employed in many important trials, and the records of our courts are filled with his pleadings, and the reports of our Supreme and Appellate courts show the evidence of the skill and ability with which he managed cases entrusted to him by his many clients and friends. He never neglected a case, nor ceased to advocate the rights and interests of his client until every plea was made and all hope was gone, and it has been said of him, though sometimes defeated, he was never fully satisfied that he was conquered. The fact is he never cried "enough" in anything or cause he undertook, unless he had gone to the bottom thereof, or had reached the topmost height. Though always anxious and determined to win his client's cause, it was never at the sacrifice of what he believed to be right. He was a conscientious lawyer, and this made him faithful to his own client and at the same time scrupulously regardful of the rights of others.

He was a Christian lawyer and as an evidence of this fact he early in life sought and retained the advocacy of the Son of God, and from his life and example every member of our bar may learn this lesson, that although he was a wise, learned and skillful advocate, and generally won his client's cause by his untiring devotion and faithful adherence to the rights and interests of those clients, yet he was too prudent and wise and thoughtful to risk his own cause at the bar of eternal justice to any other than to Him who is the mediator and intercessor of all who put their trust in Him, "the great Advocate with the Father," and hence his end on earth was peace—his life is unending in heaven. Mr. Wallace was an untiring worker in whatever he engaged. He was a stranger to idleness and derived his pleasure and recreation from always being busy. He was never an office holder. In his early practice of law he was made a justice of the peace and discharged the duties of that position with great credit. In those days magistrates held regular terms of court and much business was transacted by them.

Later in life he was chosen a member of the Constitutional Convention that framed the present constitution of Missouri and some of its most important provisions are attributed to his watchfulness and painstaking in the performance of his duty. As a citizen he was always found on the side of right and justice—a lover of good society—he contributed all his power to secure it. He was a prominent figure in the church of his choice and while his health was good he allowed nothing to prevent him from giving his most hearty service to the cause of the Master. As a friend and neighbor no one excelled him. As a husband and father he was always true and faithful. Yes, in all the walks of life into which his busy feet led him he was a model man. Life meant much to him; he appreciated to the highest degree the momentous issues depending upon it, and he filled it up full with usefulness and good work. He needs no monument of brass nor towering column of marble to perpetuate his name; for truly he has by fidelity and industry and constant adherence to truth, erected a monument more lasting than brass and more lofty than pyramids—for only the actions of the just smell sweet and blossom on the dust.

Therefore, let us, as members of the bar surviving him and as those who knew him and admired him and who desire to see the standard of our profession ever exalted and ever kept honorable and spotless resolve to emulate the purity and follow the example of our deceased brother by doing our best.

Resolved, That in the death of Brother Wallace our bar has lost one of its oldest, most honorable and best beloved members, whose influence for good will linger with us as an inspiration so long as love of truth and uprightness of character and fidelity to duty find a place in our memory.

Resolved, That we tender our heartfelt sympathy to the widow and family of our deceased brother in this their great bereavement, assuring them of our continued love and veneration, as lawyers, of the life and character of the deceased.

Resolved, That a copy of this memorial be sent to the family of the deceased, and a copy furnished to the papers of the city for publication.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN S. BLACKWELL,
RICHARD FIELD,
WILLIAM YOUNG,
JOHN E. RYLAND,
Committee.
